

REGINA DUPLICATE BRIDGE CLUB NEWS

SEPTEMBER 2004

FALL SEASON IN FULL SWING

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

- by Lyle Spencer

Welcome to another exciting season at the Regina Duplicate Bridge Club! Your Board of Directors is committed to building upon the Club's strengths – and we have many: loyal members who play regularly and who take the time to enthusiastically welcome new members; patient and knowledgeable instructors and game directors; volunteers who willingly agree to accept responsibility for ongoing Club and tournament duties; and a dedicated Club Manager and Board of Directors (past and present) who strive to present programs throughout the year to make visits to our Club an enjoyable experience.

We are addressing our #1 priority – the need for new members – by introducing two new Easy Bridge classes beginning Tuesday, September 7th. An afternoon session will be held at 1:00 pm and an evening session will begin at 7:00pm. On your behalf, I'll extend a hearty "thank you" to Dave Worby and his volunteers for taking up the challenge of this very important initiative. I also encourage all members to do what they can to help increase our membership. The Club's ongoing success ultimately depends upon our ability to attract, develop, and retain new members. We can also enhance our enjoyment of regular games and tournaments by encouraging players who have not been attending regularly to come back to The Club. Special events such as the Thursday Evening Bridge "Party Like Its 2004" on September 30th promises to be a terrific occasion. Plan to attend and help make it a resounding success!

Let's make 2004-05 "The Year of Involvement" and continue building the Regina Duplicate Bridge Club into a club that is second to none!

JOAN SCHNEIDER

February 25, 1938 to July 10, 2004

Joan Schneider fought cancer the way she played bridge. She was a tough competitor but honest and ethical. One of the few Gold Life Masters in Saskatchewan, her master points were gained by playing well with the best in our club. When you came to her table you knew you would have fun and hoped you would not get too many zeros.

She was always interesting and ready with a quick quip while she called "a spade a spade." You knew you had to play your best to make your contract. She seldom made mistakes and forced you to make more. She was especially tough on defence.

She started her card playing at home in Craik--mostly cribbage, and loved beating her father, Maurice Cogswell. Her mother Katie taught her some kitchen bridge but it wasn't until after she married and moved to Regina that she discovered duplicate. She loved it. When you visited John and Joan you could expect to have a challenging game of cribbage, dominoes or bridge after a wonderful dinner.

Next to her family, John, Todd and Corleen, petitpoint, and bridge, she loved her dogs: Brutus, Baron (Dachshunds), Sammy and Sophie (Miniature Schnauzers). She also loved going to Texas even though she said she hated it. For 10 years she said that she wasn't going back but after spending last winter here she realized how nice Texas was in the winter. She didn't make it back again.

She was a good friend and one of June's favourite partners. We will miss her.

Arnie Lind

JOAN SCHNEIDER PLAYER OF THE YEAR

Joan was always one of our top master point winners at the club. She was also often instrumental in helping others attain the most master points in any given month.

At the first Executive meeting this season, the RDBC Board, very fittingly, voted to name the "Player of the Year" Race after Joan.

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING - JUNE 24, 2004

- by Gary Priestman

On Thursday June 24th, Club members assembled for the Annual General Meeting. Out-going President Jan Gray brought the meeting to order and began her President's report. Jan thanked everyone for the efforts in making the past club year so successful and added extra thanks to her fellow Board members who gave much needed support during some challenging issues. Jan praised the Board's work on revising the Club by-laws. These changes were enthusiastically accepted by the membership. Jan concluded her report by identifying a couple of the issues that the new Board would be facing in the upcoming club year. They were the challenge of increasing revenues and dealing with the new municipal anti-smoking by-law.

Next, Treasurer Pat Beharry presented her report. Pat indicated the Club had suffered an operating loss for this fiscal year. This was due to increased operating expenses and decreased table counts. Pat indicated that the new Board would need to develop strategies to increase table counts by 4% to eliminate the loss. Another initiative is the Fall offering of the EasyBridge program under the direction of David Worby.

The election of the 2004/2005 Board followed and the slate presented by the Nominating Committee was acclaimed. Congratulations and best wishes to the new Board:

President:	Lyle Spencer
Vice-President:	David Sabier
Treasurer:	Pat Beharry
Secretary:	Ilsa Krukof
Board Members:	Erin Anderson
	Dow Cooney James Dulmage
	Pat Harlton Irene Huber
	Cal McLeod Ken Roland

Retiring Board members, Jan Gray and Gary Priestman, had the pleasure of acknowledging the Club Champions and other deserving accomplishments. Foremost among this worthy group were Player of the Year, June Lind and our five newest Life Masters: Dow Cooney, James Dulmage, Frank Gerein, Ingrid Riffel, Betty Von Hagen

Jan then adjourned the meeting and invited everyone to stay for a free game and some wonderful refreshments.

Computer-Dealt Hands Truly Random or Impishly Fixed? - copied from ACBL website

Computer-generated hands have a bad reputation in some circles — undeservedly so. "These computer hands!" is a common cry, but how different are "computer hands" from people-dealt hands? Also, how does ACBL create these deals?

Let's tackle the second question first. It is a simple matter for a computer to deal a set of 52 cards. To explain how this process works, using an oversimplified analogy, consider how a mailman places letters in a set of post office boxes. Each piece of mail has an address, and the mailman places each piece in the correct box. Similarly, each card of the deck is randomly assigned a value which determines which "box" (hand) it will be dealt to. There is a catch, however, and it has to do with the word "randomly." It is important that the computer performs this task in a random fashion. Otherwise there is a risk that the same set of hands will be generated more than once. Many computers use their internal clocks as a "random" starting value to assign each of the cards an "address." In practice, however, this method isn't sufficiently random enough. The software that ACBL uses to generate deals, therefore, requires an additional step. The staff person whose job it is to create the deals must physically deal out a set of 52 cards, just as you would do at the bridge table. The four hands are entered into the computer. This information, along with the time at which it was entered, create the starting value for the process and ensures that it is completely random. For the more technically inclined, the random number generator uses a linear congruential algorithm that will repeat after 2 to the 47th power (140,737,488,355,328) deals have been generated.

Returning to the question of whether computer-dealt hands are different from people-dealt ones, remember the great emphasis placed on creating a random deal. To create a random deal manually, players must give the deck a thorough shuffle at least seven times to guarantee that the cards are mixed. It is common, however, to see players shuffle the deck only two or three times before dealing. This is not a random deal. Although it is beyond the scope of this article to demonstrate, it has been suggested by various mathematical authorities that this inadequate shuffling may lead to "flatter" distributions. In other words, suits may break evenly more often than expected. Players who are accustomed to their trump suits dividing evenly all the time because of inadequate mixing seem genuinely offended when they encounter a 4--1 trump split in a computer-dealt game, even though that division will occur 28% of the time. "Computer-dealt hands!" they mutter, but in reality they're just getting a dose of a truly random deal. Another factor which causes some players to believe that computer-dealt hands are different from people-dealt ones is that hand records are usually available after a computer-dealt session. Players then have the opportunity to see all the cards of every deal, and some of these players will use the hand records as "proof" of the "strange distributions" supposedly caused by the computer. If these same players could see hand records from their local club games, they would find that "strange distributions" occur in hand-dealt games as well.

Does anyone at ACBL look at the deals in order to throw out "boring" ones or to include particularly frustrating ones? Never. Repeat: Never. In fact, only two people at ACBL are even permitted to see the hand records. One is the person whose job it is to set up the computer to generate the hand records. The other is the print shop manager who cuts, wraps and labels the hand-record packages. Neither is a bridge player. The hand records are then sealed and shipped to the ACBL warehouse. When needed, they are mailed to the tournament official who orders them. No one at ACBL ever manipulates the deals.

Sometimes players complain that the cards seem to run one direction (usually the direction of their opponents). "North-South had all the cards!" This does occur sometimes, but it happens in people-dealt games as well. George S. Kaufman, the famous New York dramatist and bridge expert, once quipped that clubs should post which way the cards are running as a courtesy to the players. He said this, however, during the 1930s. People have been complaining that their opponents hold all the cards since the days of whist.

Finally, let's not forget the advantages of computer dealing. At NABC+ events, the duplimate machine actually pre-deals several sections of hands based on computer records. Without computers, hand records would not be available at tournaments. It would be too time-consuming to copy all of the information from people-dealt hands.

Most bridge players prefer consistency in their partners rather than brilliance...Matthew Granovetter

Message from the Game Management Committee

As reported at the AGM in June table counts were down in 2003/2004 and we operated at a deficit. Not much is needed to reverse this trend - in fact we only need to increase table count by 4% to break even on the year.

What this actually mean? Well it means that in the 2004/2005 season we need to increase our total table count by about 106 tables - or 9 tables more each month. Nine tables a month translates into 36 people playing one extra time in the month. With over 200 members in our club, this means that if each person played three extra games over the course of the year - we would break even. If each person played 4 more times a year than they did in 2003/2004 we should comfortably be able to handle any increase in costs. This seems like very little to ask of our membership. Let's all take the challenge and commit to this small measure to help maintain the club.

In an effort to help our players enjoy these extra visits to the club the current executive is planning on having more "party" nights this year. These will be games were players are asked to bring either food or door prizes and we will all enjoy the special fun these nights are and we will help keep the "wolf from the door".

WIN LOTS OF POINTS!!!

- by Janice Anderson

Once again we are getting into the swing of all the year's bridge events. Many events begin in the fall at the club and conclude with Canadian National Finals or ACBL Wide Finals in the spring. Please check the Club Bulletin board for complete details on all events.

With the fall season just getting under way and the club anxious to increase table counts I thought it would be a good idea to review some of the "Rules of Etiquette" for bridge.

Bridge Table Etiquette

- from Play Bridge

North:

Make certain you have the right boards.
Make certain they are turned the correct direction.
Move the boards consistent with movement directions.
At the completion of the last round:
Turn a "North" card upside down
Return boards to the book shelf
Stack boards sequentially and neatly

South:

Greet your opponents.
Keep your table neat and clean.
At the completion of the last round:
Leave the table neat and clean
Straighten the table, chairs and snack tables.

East/West:

Greet your hosts
If you brought something (drink, food, trash) to the table, take it away when you leave.
At the completion of the last round:
Take final travelers to the director for scoring
Help South straighten the table, chairs and snack tables.

Bridge Etiquette

- by Keith Hanson & Mike Lawrence

All bridge players, but especially more experienced players, should provide an example of good bridge etiquette for others to emulate. Here is a list of etiquette guidelines:

- ★ Be courteous to your partner and opponents at all times.
- ★ Avoid remarks or actions that might annoy or embarrass another player.
- ★ When necessary, a call for the director should be made in a manner that is courteous to the players and to the director.
- ★ Don't take offense at inadvertent or ignorant breaches of etiquette by other players, especially inexperienced ones.
- ★ Maintain a pleasant demeanor.
- ★ Refrain from unnecessary talking during a hand or between the boards of a round.
- ★ Be a good sport. Compliment your partner or the opponents when it is deserved.
- ★ Avoid gloating after a good result.
- ★ Avoid griping after a bad result.
- ★ Abide by the director's decisions with graciousness.

Good bridge etiquette will make you a popular player. Other players will applaud your successes and commiserate with you in your failures. Bad bridge manners result in an atmosphere of hostility. When such a player does well, an air of suspicion and detachment surrounds him. Regardless of his ability and results, he will eventually run out of partners and teammates. It is in every player's self-interest to develop good bridge etiquette.

It's not enough to win the tricks that belong to you. Try also for some that belong to the opponents..Alfred Sheinwold

DICK'S DELPHI

- by Dick Anderson
One evening, while playing on the net,

Larry McCormick held the following hand:

♠ KQx ♥ AJ10xxxx
♦ xx
♣ x

The dealer, on Larry's right, opened 3C. Larry felt that it would be a sin not to be able to show this hand in some way even though, in direct seat, he lacked sufficient values for a constructive bid. Larry was afraid of 3C begin passed out when who knows what he and his partner could make.

This hand poses a good question in regards to technique and tactics after a pre-empt. Pre-empts make life miserable, as we know, as they use up a lot of exploratory bidding room. It is often necessary to make an "intelligent" evaluation of your hand and to take precipitous action on occasion.

I prefer 4 Hearts on this hand. To me it says, "I have a pretty good shot at making it pard." You provide me with one or two tricks and then the one I hope the defence will give me, should give me the contract.
Occasionally I may only need the one from the defence!! To me a 3H bid would show a different hand. There would be less distribution but likely more high card. A possible example may be:

♠ AJx
♥ AKQxx
♦ AJx
♣ xx

OR

♠ AQx
♥ AKxxxx
♦ KJ
♣ xx

I would expect partner to raise to 4H with a few cards which look useful.

Remember - the opponents have to find their four tricks before you find your 10. This is often not easy!!

Another reader submitted the following. Vulnerable against Non-Vulnerable I held the following hand:

♠ Void
♥ AKQJxxxx
♦ xx
♣ QJ

The Bidding proceeded as follows:

ME	OPP	PARD	OPP
2C ¹	2S	3S ²	P
4H	4S	DBL	P
4NT ³	P	5D	P
5H	P	P	P

² says 7 - 9 high card points

³ Blackwood

My Partner's hand was:

♠ AJx
♥ x
♦ Q10xx
♣ 97xxx

The opps cashed the Ace of Cs and then switched to the King of Spades.
This allowed me to discard and I only went down one. At other tables many in 5H were down two doubled.

Question: *Should I open 1H or 2C or 4H or what? How high should I compete based on the competition?
Are there other ways we could have bid to better describe our hands?*

Long suits often lead to interesting or even bizarre results. No system has tools to handle 9 card suits. Since your hand has only four losers, it fits one definition for a two club opening bid (ie. 9+ tricks), but falls far short of the defensive strength two club openers usually imply. I would prefer a sneak attack. If you open 1H and then bid 2H over whatever they bid, then 3H - you could buy the contract at 4H. If they arrive in 4S, after both opponents bid or support spades, you should maybe quit since the vulnerability doesn't make the 5 level very attractive. If partner had a minor suit ace, rather than the spade Ace, the 5 level can still be a good "save"!

Generally, these hands require good guessing and even better luck! As a general approach, opening one of your very long suit and then bidding

- continued on Page 6

to the 5 level will often taunt your opponents into doing something foolish. Any plus looks good, especially +790 or +850!!

Thank you to the two people who actually submitted questions to the Delphi. Hopefully others will now take the plunge and also submit their queries.

Make sure to submit your questions to DICK'S DELPHI - the oracle will do his best.
