Important reminder to all RDBC Member: This is Flu season. We have recently refilled all hand sanitizers in the 3 bathrooms and added a new sanitizer at the entrance way by the bulletin board. If you have a cold, sneeze, etc, please do not hesitate to use these sanitizers to protect yourself and other members of RDBC.

Regarding the "Duplimate" and the "Bridge Mate"

At the Annual General Meeting it was decided by the members that before a vote be taken to purchase (or not to purchase) either, or both, the "Duplimate" and the "Bridge Mate" more investigative research be done.

I have done extensive research, especially regarding the Duplimate, and wish to propose the following:

For those of you who have questions regarding the "Duplimate" or "Bridgemate", or confusion regarding either of these machines please e-mail me directly. I would appreciate it very much if you would direct your questions to me so that I can write up a report addressing your questions and addressing your concerns. My e-mail is: pamela@lcj.ca

Subject: Stats, Stats, and More Stats

From club member Jason regarding the new Statistics section of the RDBC website:

The observant people among you have already noticed that there is a new heading along the right hand side of the RDBC website entitled Statistics. Below this heading are 4 links that attempt to show what I am doing and how it works. Essentially, for the last three years, I have been taking the scores from the Game Results section of our website and entering them into various spreadsheets which I then use to calculate a variety of bridge statistics. I find these statistics quite fascinating and I decided to post them on the internet in the hope that some of you will enjoy them as well.

Check them out and let me know,

Jason Larrivee
